

The Comfort Collective

by Kevin Mehmeti

The Comfort Collective is a series of flame-retardant support cushions for the bed, that are designed to create comfort when inmates may feel discomfort or even pain. The supports are ergonomically designed to tackle discomfort in the three most common areas of the body: the head/neck, the lower back, and the legs. Within these three areas, there are a total of three different sizes, as well as three different foam densities in order to create as much of a versatile range as possible.
